

Looking back at your first semester at SDSU, are you satisfied with your performance? If not, what would you change?

Be more prepared to do more studying and reading.

BE TOTALLY READY AND HAVE EVERYTHING READY TO GO well before the start of the semester; deal beforehand as well with whatever aggravations I expect to be present in the daily routine, e.g. rude neighbors, worries about car repairs, etc.

By the end of the semester I was where I needed to be. The first month I had a difficult time getting into the routine of what I needed to do. I am now ready to hit the second semester strong.
could of done better studying wise and get better grades

Felt that in one class specifically, between a difficult subject matter, time management issues, and the way the information was presented, I would have liked to do much better.

Finance class I got a D because I missed 5 class periods but my grades reflected a C...I hate professor sterk.

Getting anything below a 3.0 is not acceptable to me and I am determined that it will never happen again. I didn't realize that the +/- grading system affected GPA so much.

I am satisfied. However, I could have done better.

I didn't spend enough time working on schoolwork other than classtime

I got too exhausted during the finals and, as a result, got lower grades the last two finals.

I had 9 units that met once a day. I perform better in classes that meet more frequently. I didn't enjoy my classes.

I had a lot of family distractions this past semester. I already feel mentally more prepared for this semester.

i had difficulties in certain areas that I believe I should have done better

I had trouble with my accounting class and my first midterms in all of my classes, I was not studying correctly.

I have gone through a lot of family and financial issues during the semester making it difficult to focus. I have been completely miserable and made a decision to redirect my future. I decided to change my major.

I made a lot of mistakes regarding study time among my classes. I Jr. college was not nearly as challenging from what the expectations of my professors were. I feel more confident going into next semester, know how to prepare.

I need to improve on my study habits and work more to understand the course material.

I should have been able to maintain straight As and a 4.0. Between work and school, I probably bit off more than I could chew.

I should have done more homework and attended class in subjects that counted this towards the final grade. Even though I did well on all exams, there were 2 classes where my lack of homework dropped my grade to a B instead of my exam average of an A. Personally, I think if you show mastery of the material on the exams, it serves no purpose to mandate homework or attendance.

I studied really hard. I understood the coursework. I liked the professors but I still was failing the tests, which really brought me down. I would put more time and efforts in next semester to boost up my grade.

I try very hard to do my best but in one of my classes it just did not work for me. I will retake the class to get my grade up.

I wanted all A's so I wish I had studied more.

I was 1 question away on my final from earning an A- in my Finance class and was gravely depressed for over a week.

I was not satisfied with my performance because of a bit lazy.

I wish I came home and studied what I learned in lecture the same day. too many subjects studied in one day takes a toll on my memory.

I wish that I did not take a statistical course in the evening because my ability to concentrate and perform quantitative information is greatly reduced towards the end of the day.

I would expect that with how hard i studied i would have done a little better on my grades.

I would have been satisfied with my performance this semester if I had extra time to study the material and prepare for exams. With my job and family, my time on the weekends is trumped by those duties, while during the week, my job takes priority during the day which leaves me with only a limited number of hours to attend class and study.

I would have kept up on my reading and stayed ahead of the curve vice playing catch up. Good lesson learned for next semester!

I would have liked to achieve over a 3.25 GPA. I felt like if I had a better ability to focus I would have been able to take advantage of my study time.

I would have liked to do better. Working 45-50 hours a week does NOT fit in with 321 Accounting.

I would have spent more time studying and not wait until the last minute to study for exams.

I would have taken different courses to weigh my success for the semester better.

I would have taken the WPA earlier and enrolled in RWS 280 for my first semester, my writing brought down my early grades but I was able to seek help and finish strong.

I would have tried harder to get the pluses on my grades. B to B+

I would like to work less, so I am able to focus more on studies.

I would of spent more time studying the beginning. I wasn't expecting some tests to be as hard as they were.

I would spend more time studying next semester as it will be lot more difficult classes in my major.

I would spend more time studying.

I would spend more time to study more than i did

I would study more and use my time more wisely.

I've had too many problems with work & personal life towards the end of semester so that I have been having hard time concentrating on studying.

Low GPA

math grade

More prepeared and more study time

My focus on the details for academic work

My grades suffered badly due to bad time management and study habits.

My study habit, my time management, and my personal life.

NO. I joined a study group and we studied rigorously day and night. Some professors cannot indoctrinate students even if their life depended on it, while others, try to trick you on the test. I firmly believe that testing is not the best way for learning and retaining information. Many students study hard just to get a good grade, BUT DID YOU LEARN ANYTHING REALLY? Many will answer "No." I may not have earned the best grade in the class.. BUT I DID LEARN CRITICAL INFORMATION PERTAINING TO MY CAREER GOALS. :)

Not to put too many things on my plate. There are only so many hours in a day and I tend to overbook my time.

Now, I don't feel as lonely and overwhelmed as I used to at the beginning of these semester. Next semester I will have a better attitude towards school, and I will review every class right after the class is over.

Read the text book more.

Should have spent more time studying.

Should have focused more on school instead of social life.

study habit

The lack of tutors for the class that I need to pass was not available to me.

Time management

Time management skills

Would have studied harder throughout the semester.

Would take more online classes. The traditional brick & mortar classes were disappointing.
